How to use these web pages

Many of the pages in this site have both an ordinary rendition that appears on your browser by clicking on a link and another version that is more appropriate for printing.

If you want to print a hardcopy of these pages, click on the PDF icon and print it. The pdf rendition is formatted for a printed page; the ordinary html rendition is formatted for a web browser. Although the formatting details differ, they both contain the identical content.

> Note:
> Some of the pages may also contain links to xml renditions. These are of little interest (except for me: they contain a rendition of the source code I typed in to define the pages and I use these links to identify problems...)